REINDEER WOOL CLOTHES.

Their Buoyancy Makes Them, na Aid to Persons Learning to Swim. From their herds of reindeer the Laplanders in northern Europe take the woolly hair and make from it blankets which are remarkable for their excellent qualities of resisting moisture and cold. Of these blankets the United States consul at Erankfurt. Germany, has this to say;

"A close examination of the hair of the reindeer furnishes an explanation of its peculiar value. The hair does not have a hollow space inside for its whole length, but is divided or partitioned off into exceedingly numerous cells, like water tight compartments. These, are filled with condensed air, and their walls are so elastic and at the same time of such strong resistance that they are not broken up ei ther during the process of manufacture or by swelling when wet. The cells expand in water, and thus it happens thát a man clad completely in garments made of reindeer wool does not sink when in water because he is buoyed up by means of the air contained in the hundreds of thousands of hair cells. In the markets and stores of Norway, Sweden and Russia garments and blankets of reindeer wool are to be had at lower prices than'other fabrics. In Vienna there is a factory which manufactures garments of reindeer wool, especially bathing costumes. For persons unable to swim the possession of such garments is of great value. It is possible that they may be utilized in learning how to swim. Recently successful trials have been made in Paris in this line. In England attention has been directed to this peculiar property of reindeer wool, and it is proposed to take up its manufacture and possibly to improve it."-Fiber and Fabric.

The Safety of London Theaters. There is no gangway through the stalls in an English theater and only two exits, so that in the event of a fire, or, what is worse, of a panic, the rush to these exits and up the steps in the passages that skirt the back of the pit and lead finally to the central lobby would be terrible. One always feels entombed in the stalls of an English theater.

However, feelings are one thing, facts another. And there is no getting away from the fact that London theaters are the safest in the world Year after year over 300 places of public entertainment are licensed by the London county council, twentythree of them being theaters and the rest music halls, concert halls, assembly rooms, dancing saloons, and so on, and in not a single one of them has a death-been caused by fire for nearly fifty years.-Sydney Brooks in Harper's Weekly.

A New French Rifle.

A new French military invention is on record. This time it is not the machine gun, but the army rifle, and again the inventor steps out from the ranks. Corporal Grissolange of the First colonial infantry has devised a method of greatly increasing the capacity of small arms for rapid firing. Instead of one magazine, holding eight provides three magazines, holding altogether eighteen cartridges, which by an easy mechanism worked with great rapidity are brought up in succession to the feeding tube. The army commission on military inventions has just notified Grissolange that the minister of war has placed his invention before the commission, with instructions to examine and report upon it.

A Remarkable Memory. A remarkable memory for faces is one of the attributes of George Denny, head watchman at the state, war and navy building. It is as head doorkeeper after office hours that Denny's peculiar gift stands him in good stead. Like the other government buildings, no visitors are allowed at the state, war and navy after 2 o'clock. Many of the offices remain open until 5 o'clock, however, and there is a constant stream of officials, messengers and newspaper men pouring in and out beyond the time that the doors are closed. Denny never makes the mistake of holding up the wrong man.—Kansas City Journal. The Metal Nodiam.

A new metal similar to aluminium. but of still lesser weight, has been discovered by the French engineer, Albert Nodon, and called "nodium" after him. It is manufactured by an electric process. In color, luster and structure it is almost exactly like steel. Its specific weight when molten is only 24. Its resistance against breaking is given as about twenty pounds a square of .04 inch. Its constancy in the air is higher than that of aluminium. Its ductility is between six and eight inches. The malleability can be compared to that of bronze. It melts at about 600 degrees.

Profits of Literary Piracy.

The octogenarian Mr. Charles Henry Clarke, just dead, netted a clear £18, 000 out of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." That was in the evil old days when literary piracy was rampant on both sides of Miss Muriel Morrow visited friends, the Atlantic and "moral rights" were of less value than waste paper. But Mr. Clarke, baving ideas of his own, took the liberty of anticipating copyright conventions by sending Mrs. Beecher Stowe a thousand guineas of the law the author's check would have been drawn for precisely £0 0s. 0d.-London Outlook.

If this is true, it indicaics that the Southern Democrats are likely to give a strong support to the New Yorker, and that the attempt of Congressman Williams So Declares Is Hearst to get delegates in that section is not ant to meet with much success.

The conviction of Senator Burton would seem to have been fully warranted by the evidence. Nevertheless it was doubtless a surprise to the defendant and his friends, as well as to the country generally, that a jury could be found courageous and honest enough to convict a man occupying such a high position. The verdict may be reversed upon technicalities by the higher courts, but its effect cannot fail to be excellent. It Is said that the Senate is not likely to take any action against Senator Furton until the case is finally disresed of. Doubtless there are some niembers of that body who feel, or at léast they ought to feel, that it would not be proper for them as persons living in glass houses to throw the first stone at their more unlucky colleague. These members only escaped the fate which has overtaken Senator Purton by pleading the statute of limitations and other technicalities and by having taken care to provide cemplaisant juries. Naturally such would be timid about giving Senator Burton a chance to allude to these facts in the event of an attempt being made to oust him at this time.

A Comparison of Two Cities.

This is saving and making money by simple methods heretofore disregarded. It is one sample of the ways of the McClellan administration, and accounts for his bigh standing as a municipal reformer with new ideas. A leading journal, not at all politically friendly to the mayor, says he presents the spectacle of a civic magnstrate standing for civic morality and decency. The New York officials go right on in their determined purpose to abolish the haunts of crime and vice. In Philadelphia a different story is told about the city government. The Ledger in a leading editorial declares that under the city government every form of crime and vice flourishes, and within a week there's have been done by the municipal authorities which cast unexampled and unspeakable ignominy upon it and the city of Philadelphia.

WOMAN'S TRIP TO MARS.

Astral Scerean Says the Flesh of Planet's Women is Luminous. At the Cosmological Center in New York the other night Vesta La Viesta, a/member of the center, told of a visit Decision' Rendered by The she had made to Mars and Venus by projecting her astral body to those (planets, says the New York Times. She said:

> "Mars is peopled with an enthusiastic, stalwart, noble race of men, with complexions shiny and black as ebony. They are wiry, muscular, taut and very supple. They play with electricity as we would with fireworks. They have a way of flashing firelike radiations from their legs that makes their presence decidedly luminous, lively and at times somewhat dazzling. They appear like huge warriors attired in atmospheric raiments of flame.

"The Mars women are beautiful, with daintily molded forms and with very fair complexions. Their flesh is luminous."

The lecturer described the architecture of the country as transcendent and said the arts and government were of proportionate superiority to this world.

"Venus," said the lecturer, "is small, but a very beautiful and tropical Further sensational incidents mark- planet and is inhabited by a charming race of beings. RAILWAY CLERKS' MEALS.

Why a Line Centering at Chicago Will Feed Its Employees at Noon. One of the largest railroads centering at Chicago is making preparations to feed its hundreds of clerks at the noon hour, says a Chicago dispatch. "The First National bank bears the expense of feeding its clerks at the noon hour, and as the undertaking has been quite satisfactory all around we have made a move to follow in the footsteps of Chicago's greatest bankthe road.

"Our men are at work at 8 o'clock, and they have an hour for luncheon. Some of them go out and have a bowl of milk and some cereal or other, while others take a sandwich and a cup of coffee or a piece of pie and a glass of milk. Many of the men do not have enough of the right kind of food to be in the best condition to serve the company. They do fairly well on their light meal until about 4 o'clock, when they become tired and hungry.

"We propose to give them a good big cut of beef, pork, fish or fowl, together with vegetables, bread and butter, milk, tea or coffee and a substantial dessert. The officials have discussed the matter thoroughly and have ar-Berlin. March 31.—The Vossische rived at the conclusion that both the more like doing a good afternoon's to thirty minutes."

Canary Bird and Bullfach Millinery, There has been a run on rare bird skins and plumage for ladies' hats this winter, says a writer in the London Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News. Individual Finger Rings. Fashion has sent forth the edict that rings must be adapted to the wearer's special shape and color of hand and no longer be worn merely because they are costly articles of luxury, says the Gentlewoman. In consequence French artists and designers are preparing lovely creations of graduated rings which will be specially adapted to the different fingers of the hand, and some startling departures will shortly be seen on the siender digits of the leaders of fashion both in London and Paris.

When the class of oughty-four lifted up its mighty voice in a farewell chorus and disbanded for the long vacation some of its individual members started in to play and some to work. A goodly number of them, in order to as waiters at seaside resorts, as driv- back. ers of cabs, as conductors of trolley cars, as baggage smashers during the rush season—as anything and everything. This was the crowd without money. The rest of the gang went where it could afford to go.

Jasper went to Newport also-everybody knows Jasper, the quarterback on the varsity. But Jasper went not as millionaire or night hawk or waiter or | for his next year's course. He caught baggage smasher. He went as Jasper. Jasper was not overburdened with cash either. Jasper knew a good many people-a quarterback invariably does, wherever be may be-but of all the people that he knew in this wide world the individknow was a girl in the college town. The last name of this girl was a name to conjure with, for it was Willoughby, and the reason was that her father was Willoughby, the trolley magnate and multimillionaire. This madé her popular among the men. But to Jasper it Marion and that he, and he alone, had rather than her last Jasper was glad that such a girl lived and moved and had her being upon the face of the earth. For the rest, he didn't think about it. He didn't like to remember that she was rich and he was poor He knew that he had no claim of any kind to her: knew that probably he nev er would have any claim to her, but Jasper loved this girl with all his heart and soul, and she-well, no one knows. She was at Newport also. But it was not for that reason that Jasper was and she was there, she never saw him. Jasper saw her now and then at a distance, but never close enough to bow. Miss Marion Willoughby was a good all round sort of girl. She did everything well, from tooling a four-in-hand about the land to making chocolate caramels or Welsh rabbit. She was one of those girls who believed that a watering place is meant for something else than sticking to dry land. The rougher the water was the better to her liking. It was upon a remarkably warm day that Miss Willoughby declined Merriwell's invitation to join a motor car crowd bound inland, and twenty minutes later she was in the surf. The beach was almost deserted. She plunged in boldly and struck out for deep water. On a little ledge of rock to the right there sat a man, one of the life saving crew that patrolled the coast. His arms and face were brown as berries. He sat alert and watchful, waiting for something to turn up. A few people in the surf turned to watch Miss Willoughby swim out to sea. The brown life saver kept glancing up and down the coast.

Afar out, in the unseen distance. something had happened an hour or so before. It probably had been the tail end of a storm. The wireless annonncement of it came only in the shape of one great wave that suddenly dashed far out on the heach, followed by another and another and another. Miss Willoughby, out in deep water, did not feel these waves.

There is one difficulty with large waves. They are large when they come in, and they are large when they go out. They come in on top. They go out underneath. They make a great fuss coming in, but have but little to say when they sneak back again. But then is the time when they are prepared to do the mischief. The people near the shore laughed and danced in this sudden advent of flerce breakers. They thought of nothing but of their own excitement. The Hie saver glanced anxiously from time did, and that man was the life saver. 3,500 feet.

 He saw that the girl who had ventured into deep water had attempted to swim back to shore. He saw that she had made no progress. Some unseen force beneath her was steadily drawing her out to sea. He saw that, with the effort she was making, her life, a human life and nothing less, was going out with the fatal undertow.

He rose to his feet and, shading his mouth with his hand, roader to her in the surf and rapidly swam out. It was easy going out. He knew it would be. other thing. Finally he reached the not met in all those years. girl. She was well nigh exhausted, earn sufficient money to go back, posed but had the foresight to float upon her voice as he reached her.

"Why, Manning, Manning," she exclaimed, "where did you come from?" The man laughed. "I'm one of the coast patrol," he answered. "Just now I'm a life saver by profession."

The man was Manning Jasper of the class of oughty-four, earning money her by the arm.

Heaven send we get them safely! day. It's a rough trip, and no mistake." It was a rough trip, and the girl knew it. But some thirty-three minutes later Manning Jasper staggered up out of ual that he particularly preferred to the surf with a precious burden in his arms-an unconscious girl whom he had saved from certain death. Jasper, too, was quite certain of one thing, and that was that but for a certain fact he might never have been able to get her back. That fact lent new vigor to his arm, and that fact was simply thiswas sufficient that her first name was that the girl, just as she was losing consciousness, had lifted up her lips the privilege of using her first name and kissed him and had called him by kins of Pleasant City, Ohio. "Exactly," replied Jasper, "and I am one of them-a fact you did not know." He leaned over and touched the rich man on the arm. "Mr. Willoughby," he continued, "that is not the point. For some months past, judged by standards other than of this world, Miss Marion was mine. Under ordinary circumstances I never would have claimed her, even though she loved me. I am poor and she is rich. Now we stand upon equal terms and I have a right to it. That life she gives to me-with the love that she has borne me for so long. I ask no favor of you, sir. I claim a right-a right that is no one's but my own. I have earned your laughter and she belongs to me."

The next day Jasper returned to his post to earn more money. He had al ready earned the girl.

Every student of history remembers Captain Perry's dispatch after the battle of Lake Erle-a sentence terse and yet glowing-"We have met the enemy, and they are ours." Every one remembers the great and significant result of the fight, but few perhaps have heard of one humble worker who served his country just as truly there as if he had been on deck amid shot and shell, earning glory as well as the reward of a good conscience. Just as the ships were going into action the mate of the Lawrence said to Wilson Mays, who was ill and unfit for service: "Go below, Mays; you are too weak to be here."

"I can do something, sir," was the stout reply. "What can you do?"

"I can sound the pump, sir, and let strong man go to the guns." Then he sat down by the pump and thus released for active service a man who had more muscle, and when the fight was over there he was found with a bullet through his heart.

Putting It Mildly.

A traveler tells of a trip on a faunt ing car in Ireland where he had as a feliow passenger an ugly looking man whom he was not sorry to leave behind at an inn. "That was a queer looking fellow,
